

How to apply for a position as a field assistant on the Lomas Barbudal Monkey Project:

An application packet should contain the following materials:

1. Letter of interest, explaining career goals and suitability for this project, plus a time frame during which the applicant is available to work
2. CV/resume detailing relevant experience
3. Transcript of college courses taken (unofficial copy OK) (summary of coursework and grades, for institutions outside the US)
4. Contact information (including email addresses) for 3 or more people who would be willing to write letters of support: We prefer that this list includes

- * one academic reference in a relevant field (e.g. primate behavior, animal behavior),
- * one person who has supervised the applicant's research or work in the past;
- * one person who has lived with the applicant in a cooperative living situation, preferably in the field.

The assembled materials should be sent via email to: sperry at anthro.ucla.edu
(substitute @ for "at" so that it reads sperry@anth....)

Important!: The subject heading of the email message should read: "application for field assistant position" - otherwise, the message is likely to vanish into the junkmail folder without being read. If you do not get a response within a week, please check to make sure the message was read.

Materials that cannot be sent via email should be sent to the following address:

Susan Perry
Dept of Anthropology
341 Haines Hall
UCLA
Box 951553
375 Portola Plaza

Los Angeles, CA 90095-1553
USA

If you do not hear back within a week's time acknowledging receipt of your application, please resend it or call Susan to alert her that it may have gone to junk mail. Applications are not reviewed until they are complete. If the application looks promising and there is a vacancy on the project in the near future, a phone interview will be conducted.
